IN MEMORIAM

IN MEMORIAM
In memory of our dear daddy, Arthur C. Cyrus, who passed away nine years ago today, August 5, 1950.

Just a word of sweet remembrance,
Just a memory fond and true;
Just a word of sweet devotion,
That our hearts will always hold for you.

Our dear home is sad and lonely
Without your smiling face.
No one can fill your vacant chair,
And no one can fill your place.

In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly, tender, kind and true;
There is not a day, dear daddy,
That we do not think of you.

God made you a wonderful daddy,
And one that never grew old;
He made you smile so sunshine,
He made your heart of gold.

Fresh is the memory the morning
you died,
We offered a prayer to God, we
cried;
Please let him stay, don't take him
away;
But God in His wisdom knew what
is best,
He took our loved one home to rest.

A loving daddy so good and kind,
No friend on earth like him we find,
For each of us he did his best,
May God grant him eternal rest.
—Sadly missed by Children.

Meet Because Are Home-Paper Readers!

Ed Ramsey was in to see us on Tuesday afternoon. Formerly of Appomattox, Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey live in Richmond. They subscribe to our paper. Last week when the mailman brought their paper, Mrs. Ramsey noted that it was "thicker" than usual, and later discovered that she had two copies instead of one. The extra copy was addressed to the Coleman Moores, and rather than send it back the Moore home was back to back against the Ramsey home! And so after dinner, the Ramseys went calling, delivered the paper to fellow Appomattox folks who had been living that close by without either knowing it! And, we "point with pride" to another reason for taking the home county newspaper!

STARTED PULLETS, A NEW PHASE OF POULTRY PRODUCTION

The business of growing started pullets may hold opportunities for many Virginia poultrymen, believes Dewey Bragg, poultry specialist at VPI.

He says this type of poultry enterprise is growing in popularity in some other areas, and it looks as though the practice of buying pullets that are from 16 to 20 weeks old is being accepted in Virginia by egg producers using both the floor and cage management systems.

Bragg says that by devoting time formerly used in growing pullets to the production phases of the business, and using all facilities available to take care of flocks in production, a producer often can increase his efficiency. He believes that if the price is right, it will pay some egg producers, especially those who are short on labor and those who have flocks of 1,000 or less birds, to buy started pullets. If properly started, pullets should be well-bred, vaccinated, and otherwise managed for top egg production.

Abbitt Bill Passes Senate

The Senate has passed and sent to the White House a bill introduced by Representative Watkins M. Abbitt (D-Va.) providing for a referendum to permit producers of both Dark-fired and Sun-cured tobacco to select one type of tobacco to raise rather than have allotments of both types.

The bill had previously passed the House, July 21.

Rep. Abbitt said the bill will "greatly benefit" producers of these types of tobacco and will aid the Department of Agriculture in administering the tobacco program.

Under the provisions of the bill, a special referendum would be held to gain grower approval and then the allotments on these dual-allotment farms would be reclassified to whichever type the farm owner elects as the kind he plans to produce.

Abbitt introduced the bill on June 9 in an effort to help facilitate the handling of the tobacco program, and it has been supported by the Virginia Dark-fired Tobacco Growers Association, the Virginia Dark Tobacco Warehousemen's Corp., the Virginia Sun-cured Cooperative, the Virginia Farmers Union and the Virginia Farm Bureau.

There are 7,353 farms in Virginia raising Dark-fired tobacco and there are 4,090 farms producing Sun-cured. Of these, 1,817 have both types of allotments.

Evidence that excellent crops are being harvested in this area, is to be found in the greatly increased patronage this season at the two community canneries in the county, here and at Pamplin. An excellent crop of peaches and apples is being used to full advantage. Families are processing apple sauce in volume. Yesterday a considerable quantity of corn on the cob was brought to the local cannery.

Dry conditions have prevailed in parts of the area for several weeks, but overall yields are perhaps the best in several years.

Rough estimates at the Appomattox Community Cannery are that the volume of food being processed is running nearly double that of the same period last year. Similar reports are coming in from Pamplin.

Farmers had a fine wheat crop in this area. And were they not held down by allotment restrictions, there would be many things at the moment to make agriculture more attractive as a career.

Pamplin Cannery To Close For Repairs, Monday Aug. 18

The Pamplin Community Cannery will be closed for repairs on Monday, August 18. The cannery will reopen Tuesday, August 19.

Both the community canneries at Appomattox and Pamplin have been busy this season, with processing running well ahead of last year. At present, peaches and apples are in large supply and being processed in volume.

WHEAT MARKETING QUOTAS APPROVED

Preliminary but conclusive returns from the wheat referendum held on June 20 show that 83.7% of the farmers voting favor marketing quotas on the 1959 wheat crop, the United States Department of Agriculture has announced.

Incomplete returns show that 165,868 votes favored marketing quotas and 32,342 votes opposed quotas. Quotas on the 1959 wheat crop were proclaimed last March by Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson. To be effective, approval by a two-thirds majority was required.

The June 20 referendum was the eighth time that farmers have voted favorably on marketing quotas for wheat. Quotas were approved in 1941 and in 1942 but were not proclaimed again until the 1954 crop. They have been proclaimed and approved each year since.

The vote in Virginia was 1,023 for and 165 against quotas, the total vote being approximately one-third of the number eligible to vote.

Growers who intend to produce over 15 acres for grain in 1959 were eligible to vote.
